How Women Won the Vote

VOLUME TWO

A Call to Action

Now is the Time to Plan for 2020

Honor the Successful Drive for Votes for Women in Your State

TENS OF THOUSANDS of organizations and individuals are finalizing plans for extensive celebrations for 2020 in honor of the 100th anniversary U.S. women winning the right to vote. Throughout the country, students, activists, civic groups, artists, government agencies, individuals and countless others are preparing to recognize women’s great political victory as never before.

Their efforts include museum shows, publications, theater experiences, films, songs, dramatic readings, videos, books, exhibitions, fairs, parades, re-enactments, musicals and much more. The National Women's History Project is one of the leaders in celebrating America's women's suffrage history and we are encouraging everyone to recognize the remarkable, historic success of suffragists one hundred years ago.

Here we pay tribute to these women and to the great cause to which they were dedicated. These women overcame unbelievable odds to win their own civil rights, with the key support of male voters and lawmakers. This is a celebration for both women and men. Join us wherever you are. There will be many special exhibits and observances in Washington D.C. and throughout the nation, some starting in 2019. Keep your eyes open; new things are starting up every day. We hope you'll be part of one or more.
A Call to Action

The goal of this Gazette is to encourage people throughout the country to celebrate the 100th anniversary of American women gaining political freedom.

The women’s suffrage movement culminated with the passage of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution on August 26, 1920. While many things have happened since, in 2020 we want to focus on the suffragists and what it took for them to win basic civil rights for women. The Suffrage Movement expanded our democracy and served our nation’s interest, it is time to write these women back into history.

Ratification Centennials Approaching

Here we break down the national movement to help people learn about women from their state, understand the state’s suffrage history, and mark the date each state ratified the amendment. These upcoming ratification centennials offer state residents another specific date to honor suffragists in addition to August 26. States played a critical role in the drive for equal suffrage, and each one produced brave, dedicated women and men who devoted themselves to winning equal rights for women.

To encourage widespread participation, we also offer hundreds of ideas, links and resources (with more online) to help readers imagine their own local observances. Women in some states are already hard at work and offer examples and inspiration for those not yet organized. 2020 will see a diverse, decentralized national celebration which, like the suffrage movement itself, will depend on local initiatives and limited funds. Unable to count on national political leadership, activists are enlisting state governments and civic organizations to take action and make official plans now for the upcoming centennial. Women are rarely the focus of national observances or holidays, so we want to make the most of this opportunity to place American suffragists solidly in our nation’s history.

A Diverse Movement

The drive to win the vote was a broad and diverse effort beyond the mass, mostly white, movement. There was a thriving suffrage movement in many black communities but black women, particularly in the south, were barred from voting for decades after 1920. It wasn’t until passage of the Voting Rights Act in 1965 that their rights were finally upheld. The voting rights of Native American women were not recognized until 1964. For Chinese American women, it was 1943, and for Japanese and other Asian American women it was 1952. Struggles for true equal rights continue.

We also want this Gazette to recognize that many men were suffragists, offering advice, raising money, and organizing campaigns side by side with the women. We celebrate men’s support for women’s rights and the fact that male voters in the hundreds of thousands supported equal suffrage. In the end, male legislators throughout the country endorsed the measure and insured its ultimate victory.

This is an exciting chapter in American history, filled with tragedy and achievement, with larger than life personalities and earth-shaking events. It rewards study, it offers entertainment and inspiration, and it features countless “ill-behaved” women who literally made history. Full victory for women is yet to be won but we celebrate the remarkable achievement of suffragists who, 100 years ago, changed the U.S. Constitution and brought women liberty and political power as voters.

LEAVE A LEGACY

Gerda Lerner was a pioneer in the field women’s history. As a scholar, author, and historian she spearheaded the creation of the first graduate program in women’s history in the United States. She served as the Chair of the National Women’s History Project’s Advisory Board and shared her expertise and support generously.

Ask your employer about matching funds. Lerner remembered the NWHP in her will, and we are forever grateful. All contributions are fully tax-deductible.

Many exciting efforts are already underway to celebrate women’s history and the Women’s Suffrage Centennial in 2020. From national organizations to state institutions to local groups, you’ll find tremendous diversity, creativity, involvement and purpose here, whether planned or already happening.

Women in an increasing number of states are organizing to see that the suffrage centennial is appropriately recognized. There are both new and existing organizations that are integrating anniversary events into their schedules. City and small town museums and civic organizations, historic sites, communities and individuals are also developing special ways to celebrate this historic advancement for both women and men.

One clear message all agree on is that there’s no reason to wait until 2020. There is a lot to do now and a lot to celebrate wherever you are. National groups need volunteers in the states, so whatever your local involvement, you might consider connecting with one of the organizations like the WVCI that wants to involve and assist citizens, activists, artists, institutions, businesses, teachers and public officials throughout the country.

Each of these groups would love to hear from you and would certainly make good use of your financial support.

Massachusetts

The Women’s Suffrage Celebration Coalition of Massachusetts (WSCC), which has grown to over 60 partner organizations (http://suffrage100ma.org), is pleased to be collaborating with the Massachusetts Commonwealth Museum on The Suffrage Centennial Display Panel Project. The project will create “Suffragist of the Month” panels from August 2017 to August 2020 which will be displayed in the Museum’s lobby and on the WSCC website.

For February 2019, the Coalition and the Boston Women’s Heritage Trail are planning a re-enactment of a historic Boston suffrage protest. In June, the centennial of ratification by Massachusetts, the WSCC is planning a kick-off event for the upcoming centennial. The Coalition holds annual Women’s Equality Day celebrations and has collaborated with the Worcester Women’s History Project and the League of Women Voters of Needham.

2020 is not only the 100th anniversary of suffrage, but also the 200th birthday of Susan B Anthony. The suffrage leader was born in 1820 on a farm in Adams, Massachusetts. To commemorate her life, the Adams
Suffrage Centennial Celebration Committee has begun to raise money, with help from the Adams Community Bank, for a bronze statue by sculptor Brian Hanlon depicting young Susan reading a book and adult Susan delivering a speech. For information and suffrage products, visit www.celebratesusananthony.org. In addition, the committee is promoting a two-year-long voter registration drive and making plans for a parade, symposium, fireworks and much more in 2020.

The Carrie Chapman Catt Girlhood Home in Charles City honors the national suffrage leader. Their educations, curricula and much more. include artworks, billboards, lectures, musical performances, and the White House have yet to announce their membership but the work of the Commission can’t start until all appointees. The Speaker of the House is widely created to ensure that the 100th anniversary of the 19th Amendment is widely celebrated throughout the country. The initiative is the central national organization encouraging commemorative activities culminating in 2020. NVCIC has launched its new website, www.2020centennial.org, which will serve as a central organizing and information-sharing center for centennial dates and plans, with plenty of links to resources as well. Arkansas Governor Asa Hutchinson issued an executive order in August 2017 creating an official committee, the Arkansas Women’s Suffrage Centennial Commemoration Committee, under the Department of Arkansas Heritage (DAH). Committee members include the DAH Special Projects Coordinator, State Historian, Secretary of State or designee, League of Women Voters and the Arkansas Women’s History Institute representatives, and three at-large appointees.

Arkansas Women’s History Institute (AWHI) celebrates the unique place Arkansas holds in the history of women’s suffrage. Arkansas became the first non-suffrage state to allow women to vote in primary elections in early 1917, and was the 12th state – and the first Southern state – to ratify the 19th Amendment. The Arkansas Women’s Suffrage Centennial Project, at https://ualchistorical.org/suffrage, was formed in early 2016 and received a planning grant from the Arkansas Humanities Council. In February 2017, supporters gathered at the Arkansas State Capitol to celebrate the centennial of the state primary suffrage bill.

RATIFICATION

The Final Drive That Won the 19th Amendment

An Unprecedented Movement

After the 19th Amendment was finally confirmed, several states competed to be the first to ratify. Wisconsin won the race on June 10 after a technicalitySprites placed in Shawnee, Oklahoma.

A Martyr to the Cause

Getting Governors to call special sessions to ratify the 19th Amendment before the 1920 presidential election demanded everything from the women involved. The complexity and cost were shown in Oklahoma. In their book, Woman Suffrage and Politics, Carrie Chapman Catt and Nettie Rogers Shuler included the following tribute:

"In September, Miss Aloysius Larch-Miller, secretary of the Oklahoma Ratification Committee... secured signed pledges from a majority of the legislators that they would attend, serve without pay, consider no other legislation and vote for ratification. When these were presented, the Governor’s answer was a refusal to answer..."

"In January 1920, the Democratic State Central Committee called county conventions to select delegates to the Democratic State Convention. Many of these county conventions passed resolutions asking the Governor to call the session. Although she had been confined to her room for several days with influenza, Miss Larch-Miller attended the convention of her county – Pittsotamie – and spoke for the resolution in opposition to Attorney General S.P. Freedling, one of the ablest orators of the State and also the strongest opponent of woman suffrage in Oklahoma. Her enthusiasm and eloquence carried the day for suffrage. The resolution was adopted. For her the price was her life. The exertion proved too heavy a tax and in two days she paid the supreme sacrifice for the cause she had served."

Aloysius Larch-Miller, 33, described as a gifted orator with abundant energy, charm, and “impressive ideas,” was mourned as a martyr to woman suffrage. In her memory, local citizens and children raised funds to create the Larch-Miller Park in Shawnee, Oklahoma.
To bring pressure on Republican-controlled states, the NWP picketed the Republican National Convention in June demanding party action. Lobbying and political maneuvering continued simultaneously.

With a determination and drive that needed only one more state.

This set the scene for the climactic vote in the Tennessee House during the hot summer of 1920. Using every tactic they could, opponents forced favorable representatives to change their positions and tried to defeat the measure in every way possible. “Never in the history of politics,” one suffragist recalled, “has there been such a nefarious lobby as labored to block the ratification in Nashville.”

“The soul of every woman”

Even after the measure passed by just one vote – Harry Burn’s – opponents continued to try to block or overturn the amendment. However, following passage on August 18, the governor quickly signed and sent the ratification bill to U.S. Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby. He signed the Proclamation on August 26 and triumphant women immediately launched celebrations nationwide. Over the next two years, suffragists successfully held off relentless legal challenges by opponents.

After their victory, Carrie Catt praised her fellow suffragists for “leading the woman’s crusade for the liberation of the mothers of the race.”

She celebrated those who felt “the grip of the oneness of women struggling, serving, suffering, sacrificing for the righteousness of woman’s emancipation. . . . Let your joy be unconfined and let it speak so clearly that its echo will be heard around the world and find its way into the soul of every woman of any and every race and nationality who is yearning for opportunity and liberty still denied her sex.”

“You’ve won!”

Victorious state suffragists gathered to witness their state’s governor signing the bill ratifying the 19th Amendment in Nevada, Kentucky (top), Maine and Nebraska (bottom).

Make August 26, 2020, a National Holiday

Today, there is no national holiday that honors women. The great achievement of the 20th century - the emancipation and empowerment of women - call for recognition at the national level. Join us in working with individuals, organizations, institutions throughout the country to honor the 100th Anniversary of women in the United States winning the right to vote.

It is time for August 26, 2020, to become a national holiday that truly honors the hundreds of thousands of suffragists who fearlessly campaigned for 72 years to secure a woman’s right to vote. This will be a serious challenge, but what better way to celebrate “Women’s Independence Day” and honor the inspiring nonviolent movement that overcame tremendous odds to win civil rights for American women.

How To Take Action

1) Proclaim

Encourage local officials and organizations to draft a proclamation that declares August 26, 2020, as a holiday.

2) Educate

Through your networks, social media, and local press share why it’s time for August 26, 2020 to be a national holiday.

3) Identify

Work with your local schools, libraries, and historical societies to identify local women, men, and locations that were instrumental in supporting the suffrage campaign. Share these local stories and celebrate the brave women and men of your town.

4) Share

Start today in sharing with your networks, social media, organizations, and local press about the upcoming Centennial, the incredible accomplishments of the Suffrage Movement, and the need for a national holiday.
Who won the vote in my state? Who led the campaigns and where can I learn more?

We attempt to briefly answer these questions below with a summary of each state’s suffrage history, names of a number of state suffragists and links to more information. We want to particularly emphasize the national scope of the women’s suffrage movement and to encourage individuals to study and share their state’s role in the enfranchisement of women.

Our choices as to where to place some of these women can be debated – some are under their birthplaces while some are not – but we want to give states maximum opportunity to claim local women who were important in winning enfranchisement at the state and national levels.

56 Campaigns, 41 Defeats

Suffragists waged 56 electoral campaigns in 31 states to win Votes for Women. They lost 41 of these drives and yet they persisted to reach their ultimate goal. Eventually, they won passage of equal suffrage measures in 15 states and won presidential, or partial, suffrage through 15 state legislatures.

By the time the 1920 election approached, politicians were shocked that women would be voting for president in 30 of the 48 states, even without another date to celebrate in addition to August 26. The key actions and coordinated strategies by suffragists in local communities, cities and states throughout the country deserve much wider recognition. They played a crucial role in securing Votes for Women nationwide.

For our information we relied primarily on printed sources and online resources posted by state libraries and historical societies. We consulted internet sources like Wikipedia cautiously and always confirmed facts elsewhere.

The Governor of Maine signs a partial suffrage bill in February, 1917.
By 1915, women had won enfranchisement in the eleven western states, leading women in the midwest and eastern states to reach out for the torch of freedom, as Hy Mayer suggested in his illustration for Life magazine. New York became the first equal suffrage state east of the Mississippi in 1917.

August 26, 2020 is the 100th Anniversary of Women Winning the Vote.

To recognize and celebrate this historic event, we need to begin today!

How to Get Involved

100th Anniversary of Women Winning the Vote!

The great achievement of the 20th century - the emancipation and empowerment of women - calls for recognition at the national level. Recognizing the 100th Anniversary of women in the United States winning the right to vote provides a great opportunity to unite our country with patriotic and historical celebrations in every community, state, and in the nation. These grand events would honor the 72-year, non-partisan campaign while recognizing the extraordinary work of three generations of Americans who worked to ensure women’s inclusion in our democracy. This celebration recognizing the campaign for women winning the vote is a central part of our national heritage. This quintessential event is an American Event.

Start Now!
Recruit your friends and family to join you. Begin by making plans for August 26th this year and build on it for next year to ensure that by 2020 you have built enthusiasm for an extraordinary event.

Organize a Community Coalition
Contact women’s groups, educational organization, equity organizations, community libraries, local historical society, and museum. Start with something small and build on the event’s success.

Engage Your Elected Officials

1. Contact your state superintendent of schools and ask what the schools will be doing to celebrate the history and success of the Women’s Suffrage Movement.

2. Contact your Secretary of State and ask what your state is doing to celebrate half of the population winning the right to vote.

3. Contact your local representatives’ offices. Ask them to meet with you to discuss plans for celebrating the Women’s Suffrage Centennial.

Proclamations: An Important Beginning
Engage your local, state, and national representatives and ask that they begin with a Proclamation for Women’s Equality Day. 2018. This is an easy win and one that can be duplicated each year. (Visit www.nwhp.org Women’s History All Year section) You can use this as a guide for future years.

Lobby For Support
• Make phone calls, visit, or write letters to local, state and Congressional representatives.
• Write letters to the editor of your local paper and include information of on your local suffragists whenever possible.
• Contact local, state, and congressional representatives on social media.

NOW.org Toolkit
If you are seeking resources to engage your elected officials check out the “Raise Your Voice Toolkit.” Although designed for lobbying for the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), the NOW resources can be used for a variety of issues including the ERA and an Equality Day holiday.

Social Media
Share your story - “Why is it important to celebrate the Women’s Suffrage Centennial?" #suffragecentennial #votesforwomen100years #womensequalityday

Host a Gathering
Gather your historical enthusiasts and lovers of women’s history to celebrate the accomplishments of women. Whether you host a tea, a luncheon, or a film, there are endless possibilities for collaboration and fun. For more ideas visit:
https://suffragistmemorial.wordpress.com/2015/08/16/how-to-host-a-suffragist-memorial-party/

Hold a Commemorative Tea
The History
On July 9, 1848 five advocates for women’s rights met for tea in Waterloo, New York. From their afternoon discussion these women - Lucretia Mott, Martha Wright, Mary Ann McClintock, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and Jane Hunt - would move to action and plan the Seneca Falls Convention of 1848; the first convention for women’s rights in the United States. What was once a way for women to gather among friends, meeting for tea became an act of rebellion as women used this time to educate themselves on the cause of suffrage and organize to take action to acquire the vote. Throughout the campaign, women would meet in their homes, tea rooms, and other public spaces to join forces.

Commemorative Tea Ideas
• Ask women to dress in suffrage colors (purple, gold, and white).
• Serve tea, sandwiches & sweets.
• Goodie Bags could include How Women Won the Vote Volume 2 or other Women’s Rights Information.
• Post your Tea on social media to inspire and connect with other celebrations around the country.
• Name tables after famous locations or suffragists.
• Create biography cards on women suffragists.
• Invite male supporters.
Host a Showing of a Suffrage Film
Choose a film that highlights the struggles and accomplishments of the Women's Suffrage Movement. Partner with your local college campus theater, or women's club to show the film. Invite champions of Women's History to be part of a panel discussion.

Prefer a more intimate gathering? Invite your friends and family over to view the film and use the discussion questions to hold a lively discussion about Women's voting rights then and now.

Viewing Guide with discussion questions:

Make It a Local Event
Parades
The History
March 3, 1913, Alice Paul organized a parade for suffrage through Washington D.C., one day before the inauguration of President Woodrow Wilson. The parade hosted 8,000 participants, nine marching bands, 20 floats, and a performance in front of the Treasury Building. As the marchers approached Pennsylvania Avenue, they were blocked by thousands of spectators who were mostly men. The police did not intervene and many marchers were assaulted. Over 100 marchers were hospitalized. The violent assault of the marchers received national attention and gained support for the movement.

How To
• Begin today
• Don’t worry about starting small
• Create a local Centennial Coalition
• Identify the best time of year, i.e. March, Memorial Day, Equality Day, etc.
• Identify organizations that support Women’s History
• Contact your local planning committee for input
• Build on your momentum

Visit a Local Museum
• Women’s History of California http://womensmuseumca.org/
• National Woman’s Party http://nationalwomensparty.org/
• National Voting Museum http://nvmi.com/

Don’t have a local museum to visit?
Create a Temporary Museum
Partner with local historical societies and educational institutions to create exhibits displaying information on the suffrage movement. The displays can be housed at your local mall, library, or public entity that supports women’s history.

Collaborate with your local library and bookstores
Author’s Corner at local bookstore/library
Ask your local library to create a display that highlights women’s suffrage for an entire month.

Image from http://librarianondisplay.blogspot.com/2015/03/march-she-believed-she-could-so-she-did.html

Design a Mural
Work with your local community members, schools, and artist to create a mural that honors the centennial of the vote.

Girls Scouts
The Girl Scouts offers several opportunities to earn a badge related to Women’s History. For more information for your Girl Scout troop or to collaborate with the Girl Scouts on a project visit https://www.girlscouts.org

Everyday Historians
The National Women’s History Project really started as an “everyday historian” project where supporters traveled throughout the nation uncovering and re-discovering photographs, documents, and historical artifacts that expanded our understanding of the historical impact of women. We encourage you to continue this legacy by becoming an “everyday historian.” Contribute findings and projects to the Votes for Women National Trail. www.ncwhs.org/index.php/projects/trails/293-votes-for-women-trail

The projects found in this section are great ways to celebrate the history of suffrage and add to the growing database of information. You don’t need historical training to participate. There is so much history to be uncovered - every effort counts.

Visit Your Local Archives and Library
The History
In truth, the victory of suffrage was a hard won fight that was a culmination of actions both big and small, that were taken by women in every city, county, and state in our country. Without the courageous acts of countless women, the vote would likely never have been won. It’s time that these nameless women receive the recognition that they deserve. Your local archive is a great place to discover these women.

Share Your Discoveries
How To
• Visit your local archives.
• Share your vision with the archives’ director and staff. They are a great resource.
• Think outside the box; review census data, read newspaper articles, look in phone books, scan images.
• Share your discoveries and the important locations in your town with city officials and historical societies.

Create a map of your local suffrage sites.
• You may want to partner with local schools, historical societies, women’s groups, and tourism boards to identify key locations where where rallies, teas, and demonstrations were held in your town.
• Once you’ve identified these important and likely unknown locations construct a visual representation of the spots to visit.
• Distribute copies of the map through bookstores, local libraries, and other businesses that would be interested.
• Post it online.

Possible Funding Sources
• Local Banks
• Local Newspaper
• Bookstore, local business, state libraries, historical societies
• Sell advertisements on the back of the map
• Tourism Board

A great way to get the community involved is to work with your historical society, tourism board, and local volunteers to give tours of your local suffrage sites.

Historical Societies
Ask what they have planned for the 2020 Centennial. Recruit their participation in a coalition.

Keep Informed and Stay Involved
The 2020 Women’s Vote Centennial Initiative (WVCI) is the central organizing and information website for programs, projects, and activities for commemorating the Women’s Suffrage Centennial, which will provide information and resources to educate the public on the legal and social advances resulting from the amendment, and to stimulate dialogue to address the ongoing fight for women’s rights. https://www.2020centennial.org/about
Many methods were used to awaken the voters.

From the 1912 suffrage campaign in Kansas

The treasurer reported $37.50 received as membership fees, and $100, as a gift from Mrs. Catt. This was a small sum to begin a campaign for about 500,000 votes, but all hearts were filled with courage.

“With votes as with most of the dollars – they were not coming unsought, and in order to make sure of them they must be looked for in their own habitat. This the women did on horseback, in wagons, carriages, steam cars and automobiles. They were found in the shops, offices and stores, at the fairs, conventions and Chauteauquas, at the theater and the circus, on the farms and the highways, at the fireside and in the streets.”

Our 17-minute DVD presents both pro- and anti-suffrage arguments before ratification of the 19th Amendment in 1920. A great discussion starter!
The Women's Network will build some of its 2020 programming through its popular Feminist First Fridays, which happen monthly at eight locations around the state. These groups plan to purchase children's books about suffrage and schedule readings at local elementary schools, after which the books will be donated to the school libraries. www.ndwomen.org.

Maine

The Maine State Museum will open an exhibit on Maine's ratification of the 19th Amendment in March 2019, and a bill will soon be introduced to establish a commission to coordinate Maine's suffrage centennial celebrations. Already, supporters are encouraging the Maine Humanities Council to target small grants toward helping historical societies and libraries plan 2020 activities.

Anne Gass, one of several descendants who have written about their suffragist ancestors, does author talks on her book, Voting Down the Rose: for Woman Suffrage. Anne, who is running for state representative in 2018, reports that, "Maine's a big state with a relatively small population (1.3 million) and not a lot of suffrage awareness. So we're doing the best we can with few resources." Anne also does suffrage presentations and promotes a Women's History Speakers Bureau to bring this story to high school students. Contact her at agassmaine@gmail.com, and visit www.florencebrook-whitehouse.com.

Kentucky

The Kentucky Woman Suffrage Project (KWSP) is leading the 2020 state-wide effort with parades, exhibits, reenactments, monuments, documentaries, plays and scholarly conferences all in the works for 2019 and 2020. The website, www.kentuckywomansuffrageproject.org, serves as a clearing house for local and statewide suffrage events. KWSP also uses social media to connect and inform people: facebook.com/KYwomansuffrage and Twitter @kywomansuffrage.

South Dakota

The Rapid City AAUW plans to "soft launch" its 2020 programming in March 2019 with a Sally Roesch Wagner talk at the local Humanities Festival of Books. The official kickoff will follow in December with a celebration of the state's ratification of the 19th Amendment. A full range of activities are being scheduled, with a second major commemoration set for August 26, 2020.

Tennessee

Women in Tennessee have been active for years and have set a high bar for the rest of the nation. The Tennessee Woman Suffrage Centennial Collaborative has assembled an impressive list of Collaborative Partners and is preparing for the 100th anniversary of women’s right to vote by creating resources, planning events and a teacher’s workshop, honoring their state’s history, and erecting statues of notable suffragists, http://www.mtsuhistpres.org/tennessee-woman-suffrage-centennial-collaborative. A privately funded Tennessee Woman Suffrage Monument was unveiled on August 26, 2016, in Nashville’s Centennial Park, tnsuffragemonument.org, and ten years earlier, the Suffrage Coalition erected another life-size, bronze statue featuring three Tennessee suffragists at Market Square Mall. Legislator Harry Burn and his mother F Eb are next to be honored with a statue at Market Square in Knoxville, http://suffragecoalition.org/burn-memorial.

Maryland

Women legislators (above) in Maryland created the Commission on the Commemoration of the 100th Anniversary of the Passage of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution in 2013 to commemorate the events that occurred in Maryland. Members and volunteers have since inventoried suffrage sites, developed a strategy to encourage tourism, and fostered collaboration between federal, state, county and municipal organizations around the centennial.

On March 3, 2018, Maryland unveiled a new highway marker which recognizes the women from across the nation to Congress who gathered in Hyattsville on July 31, 1913. Filling 60 automobiles, suffragists motored to the capital and delivered petitions demanding the immediate action to the Senate.

Minnesota

The Minnesota League of Women Voters, the Minnesotas Women’s Consortium, and Zeta Phi Beta are meeting with legislators about submitting a bill establishing a Minnesota state commission. A group of volunteers is also focused on raising awareness of the state’s ratification centennial in September 2019. Minnesota was the 15th state to ratify, passing the legislation in a special session on September 8, 1919. Contact Tom Mortenson at internetmort@yahoo.com.

Montana

Montana Women’s History offers great resources including an idea sheet on how to celebrate women’s history in your state. Women’s History Matters is a project of the Montana Historical Association. http://montanawomenshistory.org/how-to-celebrate/.

Illinois

In Illinois, several projects are underway for the 2020 Suffrage Anniversary. The Evanston Women’s History Project, Frances Willard House Museum, and Shorefront Legacy Center have created the first annual Tour Evanston Women’s History Map. The 2018 map will highlight fifteen women’s history sites throughout Evanston and will provide a fun, informative and relevant summer activity for self-guided walking, biking and driving tours.

Researchers are also working on documenting Illinois women who were involved with the National American Woman Suffrage Association for the Women and Social Movements website, and are collecting site-specific information for the National Collaborative for Women’s History Sites’ Votes for Women Trail. We have also formed a committee with the League of Women Voters of Illinois to begin planning for a statewide commemoration of the anniversary that will include many other partners. Visit http://evanstonwomen.org.

Washington

The Washington state legislature has just created a Women’s Commission to prepare for the 2020 centennial. The Washington Women’s History Consortium is overseeing the updating of resources developed originally for their state suffrage centennial. The Washington State Archives has updated a poster created for that centennial. Visit http://www.washingtonhistory.org/research/whce/

Arizona

AZ Celebrates the 19th Amendment is a non-profit organization dedicated to honoring the women of the suffrage, feminist and civil rights movements, and inspiring women to get involved in the political process and leadership roles.

AZ Celebrates the 19th Amendment hosts a grand celebration event every year on Equality Day, August 26th. Dedicated committee members put together a program of well-known speakers, highlight women who are running for office and elected officials with a Parade of Runners, and provide tabling, networking, music and a dessert reception.

Pennsylvania

Vision 2020 is a national women’s equality coalition operating out of Drexel University in Philadelphia. Throughout the suffrage centennial year, Vision 2020 will host Women 100 to illuminate the historical contributions of women and set the agenda for the 21st century. The centennial will be celebrated through several events in Philadelphia and beyond in 2020, including:

• An interactive women’s history exhibit
• A caravan to transport a copy of the Declaration of Sentiments from Seneca Falls, New York, to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
• A voting competition among the states to turn out a record number of women in the 2020 national elections, plus
• Forums and panel discussions, concerts, art exhibitions and more.

Every year, Vision 2020 hosts a National Congress involving delegates and allies from every state, a Toast to Tenacity on Women’s Equality Day, and a HERstory scavenger hunt that inspires girls and boys to find the underrepresented stories of women. http://drexel.edu/vision2020/ and https://equalityinsight.wordpress.com/. Vision2020 has also posted an Educator’s Guide online to help K-12 educators address women’s equality.

Missouri

Michigan

Washington D.C.

The capital is paying attention to the upcoming centennial, with representatives of federal institutions already planning and meeting together. Institutions including the National Archives archives.gov, Library of Congress loc.gov, National Portrait Gallery npg.si.edu, National Park Service np.gov, the Smithsonian americanhistory.si.edu/ and others are developing plans for displays and exhibitions related to the suffrage centennial. Check out their individual websites for updates.

In addition, institutions like the Library of Congress and the National Archives have excellent online resources available including original documents, lesson plans, photographs, and exhibits on the women’s rights movement.

The Belmont-Paul Women’s Equality National Monument, nps.gov/bepe/index.htm, is the closest thing yet to a museum on American suffragists, complete with marble busts, paintings, and historic heirlooms. Most belong to the National Woman’s Party, www.NationalWomensParty.org, formed during the suffrage movement and housed in the same building.

In May 2018, the NWP started a Centennial Book Talk Series in partnership with East City Bookshop. The series will offer talks by women’s equality authors bi-monthly and will also announce a big event around June 2019, so keep in touch.

The NWP and the National Park Service produced an Activity Book on How to Be a Junior Suffragist: www.nps.gov/nama/learn/kids/youth/upload/B EPA_Junior_Suffragist_Book.pdf.

The National Portrait Gallery is creating an exhibition, “Votes for Women: An American Awakening, 1840-1920,” which will be on view in Washington, D.C. from March 1, 2019 to January 5, 2020. A comprehensive history of the American Suffrage Movement, the exhibition will feature approximately 105 objects including portraits of the influential leaders along with significant ephemeral culture such as suffrage posters, banners, photographs, postcards and more. The exhibition will be accompanied by a fully-illustrated catalogue featuring scholarly essays.

The Newseum, also in the capital, has created an online exhibit utilizing their historic newspaper collection entitled, “Women, Their Rights and Nothing Less: The First Amendment and the Women’s Suffrage Movement, newseum.org/collection/womens-suffrage-edcollection.

Non-governmental organizations are also laying plans to recognize this historic anniversary. Stay up to date with the League of Women Voters, lwv.org, American Association of University Women, aaau.org, and other longstanding and newly formed groups focused on women as well as those focused on American history, democracy and the Constitution.

The National Women’s History Museum, www.nwhm.org, has created an educational online resource center that highlights key aspects of how women won the right to vote. “Crusade for the Vote” examines the women’s right movement from the early Republic era through the passage of the 19th Amendment. It contains short articles on various aspects of the Suffrage Movement, biographies of key figures, guiding questions, lesson plans, and primary sources. Visit CrusadeForTheVote.org. Additional resources will be added.

The NWHM also sponsored a nationwide study to find out what teachers are teaching. Now, they are preparing helpful student/teacher resources to increase visibility of women in the classrooms. Learn more at www.womenshistory.org/social-studies-standards. The NWHM is also launching a feasibility study for an innovative suffrage traveling multimedia exhibit using augmented reality technology to inspire students and young adults. The One Woman, One Vote Film Festival will celebrate the Centennial of American women winning the right to vote and the power of each woman’s voice to elevate the voices of all. A coalition of women in the film industry is planning the festival to showcase documentaries, features, and new media about women’s rights and influence in politics, business, arts, culture, science, and more. The Festival will launch in March 2020 in Washington, D.C and selected films will travel nationwide.

The Congressional Commission formed to study the potential for an American Museum for Women’s History in 2016 called for the creation of a pan-institutional Smithsonian Women’s History Initiative. The idea is to hire and place women’s history curators in key museums throughout the Smithsonian’s family of museums and support exhibits showcasing American women’s contributions to our country’s story. The goal of the Initiative is to build momentum and grassroots support for constructing a permanent museum in a prominent location in the Capital. https://support.si.edu/site/SPageNavigator/womenshistory.html/womenshistory.

Women and Social Movements in the United States

Women and Social Movements in the United States, the online subscription journal and database, http://wonhist.alexanderstreet.com, accessible through many libraries, is creating an Online Biographical Dictionary of the Woman Suffrage Movement. Volunteers are writing brief sketches of more than 2,500 suffragists active with the National American Woman Suffrage Association between 1900 and 1920. The goal is to have the Dictionary ready for 2020.

The WSM is looking for individuals interested in researching and writing one or more biographical sketches (roughly 500 words) and faculty members interested in having their students prepare biographical sketches. Our academic advisors will review and copyedit. Project Director Tom Dublin will arrange for the publication on the website and will give author credit to all writers. He has already led efforts to document black suffragists and members of the National Woman’s Party. The Biographical Dictionary will be made publicly accessible in September 2018. If you are interested, please send an email to tdublin@binghamton.edu.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton Virtual Reality Tour

In 2017, the biography of women’s rights pioneer Elizabeth Cady Stanton became a free Google virtual reality Expedition. It was created by Coline Jenkins, Stanton’s great-great granddaughter, and Debra Kolsrud to share Stanton’s legacy and inspire social justice activism today. To access the “Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Women’s Rights” tour, log in to a current Gmail account, search for “Google Expeditions,” and download the free app (not available for laptops).

Cardboard V-R boxes are available for purchase so students can view the tour as “explorers” while the teacher reads aloud the text (see photo) as “guide” for the downloaded tours. This YouTube video is about Google Expeditions: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=tcce7jGjDWY. Here is a link for downloading the free app: https://itunes.apple.com/us/app/expeditions/id1131711060.

Boston Women’s Heritage Trail

“Remember the ladies,” stated Abigail Adams in 1776. In the two centuries since, neither John Adams nor generations of men that followed did much to remember or commemorate the numerous women who helped mold the New Republic, even in Boston. This began to change when a group of teachers, librarians and students brainstormed and inaugurated the Boston Women’s Heritage Trail in 1989. We have continued to restore women to their rightful place by uncovering, chronicling and disseminating information about the women who have made lasting contributions to the City of Boston. Our talks and neighborhoods trails are available on our website and by smart phone app. A printed trail guide can also be ordered, http://bwht.org.

Additional Resources

There is much more available on the women’s suffrage movement than ever before. Search and you will find. The National Women’s History Project (www.nwhp.org) offers many resources online, including a 32-page list of books by and about suffragists, films, products, state links and suffragist’s names, How Women Won the Vote, Additional Print and Online Woman Suffrage Resources.

Volume 1 of this Gazette is also online, http://www.nwhp.org/wp-content/uploads/gazette_How-Women-Won-Vote.pdf. Information from an earlier Gazette, Women Win the Vote, is available along with short biographies of 75 suffragists, a timeline, article, history and more at http://mith.umd.edu/WomensStudies/ReadingRoom/History/Vote.html.

American Journalism, A Journal of Media History, has created a very interesting Women’s Suffrage and the Media “database and resource site” full of leads to multimedia primary and secondary sources.

Our goal is 1,000 by the end of 2018. Our database will then become a mobile-friendly website that will be searchable and accessible to all. Join us and research sites related to suffragists in your area and enter your data (instructions can also be found at this link). http://newhs.org/index.php/projects/trails/293-votes-for-women-trail/help. The Collaborative is also working with the Pomeroy Foundation to install suffrage-related roadside markers at historic sites throughout the country. Suggestions? Email: info@nwhs.org.

Turning Point Suffragist Memorial Association

Turning Point Suffragist Memorial Association is raising funds to build a national women’s suffrage memorial near Washington D.C. The park-like site will commemorate the millions of suffragists who fought for more than seven decades to win the vote for American women. Turning Point's mission is “to educate, inspire and empower present and future generations to remain vigilant in the quest for equal rights.” A leadership Institute for girls is also planned. The memorial dedication will coincide with the centennial anniversary of ratification of the 19th Amendment in August 2020. www.suffragistmemorial.org.

The Association is seeking sympathetic individuals to join our National Board and represent Turning Point in their respective states. Turning Point is a non-profit institution and naming rights in the memorial park are available. Contact Pat Wirth at pwirth@suffragistmemorial.org. Also check out their “Suffragist of the Month.” They will publish a special issue in April 2019. http://suffragandesthemedia.org/. Another useful site is https://www.cliohistory.org/click/.

Answers to the ERA TEST (from page 21)

1. False. The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) was designed to guarantee equal legal rights for all American citizens regardless of sex.

2. False. Although the Supreme Court has extended some protection against sex discrimination under the 14th amendment, it is not the same robust protection extended to other forms of discrimination such as race discrimination. Moreover, because the 14th does not explicitly ensure gender equality, some conservative Supreme Court justices, such as former Justice Antonin Scalia, read the current Constitution as providing no protection whatsoever against sex discrimination.

3. True. The Madison Amendment - the 27th Amendment - was ratified in 1992, 203 years after it was first introduced, thus setting the precedent that ratification can occur many years after an amendment is introduced. ERA Unfinished Business from Alice Paul (see https://youtu.be/5dyWVGyn8Bs

4. True. ERA Fact sheet from 2012 poll for Daily Kos and SEIU found that 91% of Americans believed men and women should have equal rights affirmed by the Constitution.

5. True. ERA Fact sheet opinion poll found that 72% of Americans believed that the Constitution already guaranteed equal protection to men and women.
In 1923, coming on the heels of the ratification of the 19th Amendment and women finally winning the right to vote, Alice Paul, Crystal Eastman and others at the National Woman’s Party came together to draft an Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) to the Constitution that would broadly prohibit discrimination on the basis of sex. The Amendment, then known as the Lucretia Mott Amendment, read “Men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction.” Alice Paul subsequently rewrote the ERA to model the language of the 15th and 19th Amendments: “Equality of Rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.” Unfortunately, Paul and Eastman’s zeal for gender equality wasn’t supported politically and it would be years before the amendment would garner support nationally.

Between 1940 and 1972, the ratification of the ERA amendment would be placed on both the Democratic and Republican platforms when the two parties believed the ERA could elicit the female vote in support of their party.

During the 1970s, a new wave of support for the ERA moved the amendment through the House and the Senate by huge majorities and was signed in 1972 by President Nixon. Several states maneuvered to be the first to ratify the amendment and in the end Hawaii would earn that distinction. From there, one state after another ratified the amendment until fierce opposition, led by Phyllis Schlafly halted forward progress. Fears of the ERA wreaking havoc on the notion of “traditional” family values, convinced enough people to end their support for the amendment and along with it, constitutional protection for women.

Deadline Extended

As the 70s came to a close, 35 states ratified the amendment within the deadline imposed by Congress. The ratification deadline would later be extended to 1982 but no additional states ratified by then and thus the amendment did not receive the requisite 38 states needed for ratification and never actually became part of the Constitution.

14th Amendment

Many people today believe that the Constitution fully protects from gender discrimination either under the 14th amendment or the ERA amendment. However, the ERA was never ratified and, although the Supreme Court has extended some protection against sex discrimination under the 14th amendment, it is not the same robust protection extended to prohibit other forms of discrimination such as race discrimination.

Without explicit constitutional protection, the rights of women are at the mercy of any given political climate, as sex equality statutes such as Title IX or the Equal Pay Act can be changed by the Congress at any time or weakly enforced by presidential administrations that are hostile to women’s equality.

Ensuring that women’s rights withstand the ebbs and flows of politics, the ratification of the ERA is a necessary addition to the Constitution.

Nevada Ratification

During the decades following the original fervor for ratification, the fight for ratification of the ERA continued in some states that did not ratify it. Then, in 2017, Nevada’s ratification of the ERA breathed new hope into the movement. Illinois has just passed the ERA becoming the 37th State. Only one more is needed to meet the 3⁄4 majority needed to amend the Constitution. Several other states including Virginia, North Carolina, Florida, and Arizona have seen a great deal of activity around the ERA. This exciting development means that the long fought for ratification may be finally be reached.

Uncertain Future

Once 38 states have ratified the ERA, then as Jen Deaderick, who is writing a new book on the history of the Equal Right Amendment and has founded the Equal Rights Amendment Facebook page says, “then the fun would start.” Congress would then need to overturn or retroactively apply the 1982 deadline. Supporters of the “3-state strategy” analogize to the history of the 27th Amendment which met conditions for congressional pay raises. Although first proposed by Congress in 1789, it was not ratified by the requisite number of states until 203 years later in 1992. In contrast, the ERA ratification period of 36 years likely meets the Supreme Court requirement of a “sufficiently contemporaneous” consensus. Another hurdle is the fact that several states have since rescinded their ratification of the ERA. However, it is unclear if such actions are legally binding. Now, more than ever, the ERA needs our support.

The power of social media has proven to be quite effective in recent years. Facebook, in particular, has allowed diverse groups, spread across geographical areas to stay informed of which states are drafting legislation in support of the ERA.

As we’ve seen with the Women’s March and the #metoo movement, there is much that can be accomplished when we come together to bring about change. We encourage you to stay informed regarding the progress of the ERA, as well as, share with your family and friends all the benefits that come with ratifying this much needed amendment.
Amending the Constitution is Complicated Business

“I never doubted that equal rights was the right direction. Most reforms, most problems are complicated. But to me there is nothing complicated about ordinary equality.” ~Alice Paul

Test Your ERA Knowledge

1. The ERA would benefit only women.  T or F
2. The ERA is unnecessary because women are already protected by the 14th Amendment.  T or F
3. If three more states ratify the ERA, it could stand up in court because of the deadline issued for ratification.  T or F
4. In 2012, 91% of Americans believed that men and women should have equal rights affirmed by the Constitution.  T or F
5. In 2001, an opinion poll stated 72% of Americans believed the Constitution already guaranteed equal protection to men and women.  T or F

Equal Means Equal by Jessica Neuwirth

In her book, Equal Means Equal, Jessica Neuwirth highlights why the ERA is so imperative for securing equal rights for women. Through the topics of pay equity, pregnancy discrimination and violence against women it becomes evident that until the ERA is amended, women will not know true equality under the law.

The NOW Foundation focuses on a broad range of women’s rights issues. Visit their website for Social Media toolkits and up-to-date information on the ERA and other women’s rights issues.

Winning the Vote:
The Triumph of the American Woman Suffrage Movement
Robert P. J. Cooney, Jr.

Winning the Vote presents the whole story, from Seneca Falls to Ratification, from Susan B. Anthony to Alice Paul – including Lucy Stone and Anna Howard Shaw and Ida B. Wells and John Braly and many more. Over 75 leading suffragists are pictured and profiled, and hundreds of photographs and illustrations, many in full color, make the vibrant movement come alive.

Winning the Vote is an elegant, oversize clothbound treasure with 496 pages, nearly one thousand images, and an easy to follow text that makes women’s great victory accessible to all ages.

The book was named one of the “5 Best Books” on the suffrage movement by The Wall Street Journal. It has won rave reviews from scholars, activists, and readers like K.D. in Ohio who just wrote, “Winning the Vote is just beautiful – a sumptuous pleasure to look through and read.”

On October 8, 1991, seven Democratic Congresswomen helped bring national attention to the issue of sexual harassment during the confirmation hearing for Clarence Thomas for the Supreme Court. Following the controversial hearing, a record number of women ran for public office, which resulted in five women winning seats in the Senate and 24 winning seats in the House.
